

LIFE ON A CAMPING SAFARI

If your choice is to partake in a camping safari, then there are a few matters to consider to make outdoor living enjoyable and fun for you and your fellow travelers. Camping is part of the experience and should certainly never be seen as a chore.

GENERAL:

- When camping is involved the traveling day's distances will be shortened, making the days more relaxed and providing time for setting camp and breaking up.
- Get into a routine as soon as possible and make peace with comforts you might not have.
- Attempt to stick to the time table on days when we need to move, there is always a plan in place.
- It is advisable for travelers to participate with camp duties and often we will split into teams with regards to cooking and cleaning, (on participating trips)
- Often we find ourselves in very remote locations, making provisions & water few and far between. We ask you to be conscious of this challenge.
- Environmental conditions do change and present us all with some challenges. It might not have been your idea of bliss..., but we will endeavor to make you as safe and comfortable as possible.

COOKING:

- Daily the lead guide will set the roster in play, unless it is a non participating trip.
- All kitchen equipment, including gas along with utensils will be supplied.
- Depending on our location and activities for the day we will alter between the number of meals.

Generally 3 meals are provided as part of the package, but sometimes when doing early morning game drives we might end up with 2, a brunch and dinner. Depending on your specific itinerary, we often allow you the opportunity of choosing something different at a restaurant or road side stall or market, which is normally for your own account.

GEAR:

- All camping equipment will be provided
- A two man tent, with stretcher / camp bed, mattress and bedding provided.
